

Virtual

Indigenous Digital Storytelling, Dr. Lorena Sekwan Fontaine

The heart health of Indigenous peoples is commonly known through a euro-western medical worldview. The understanding of Indigenous knowledge and the impact from historical trauma and current systemic discrimination and racism is often silenced. Dr. Lorena Sekwan Fontaine will present on a community-based study that uses oral history digital storytelling and learning circles to explore culturally rooted knowledge of heart care among Indigenous women in Canada.

Lorena Sekwan Fontaine, PhD
(Cree and Anishnaabe)

Distinguished Professor at the University of Winnipeg
and SDSU Fulbright Scholar in American
Indian Studies.

Wednesday
Feb 23rd @ 4 PM

To register:
teachdh.sdsu.edu/programming/

Co-sponsored by the Department of American Indian Studies.